

Sudan’s Descent: A Nation Torn by War and Unyielding Despair

What would it feel like to wake up one morning and find your world turned upside down, your streets engulfed in chaos, and your future uncertain? This is the reality for the civilians of Sudan, who, in April 2023, opened their eyes to a nightmare they could scarcely imagine. Two powerful generals—leaders of the Rapid Support Forces and the Sudanese Armed Forces—had plunged the nation into a brutal struggle for power, and ordinary lives became collateral damage.

Imagine being forced from your home, your family scattered, with nothing left but fear and survival instincts. Where do you turn when millions are displaced, food is scarce, and disease lurks in every corner? How do you hold onto hope when famine begins to tighten its grip, and the familiar rhythms of life are replaced by desperation?

This is the haunting reality of Sudan today—a nation caught in the relentless grip of conflict, left to wonder what tomorrow might bring.

What is the situation as of now

Chat to know and Speak about it

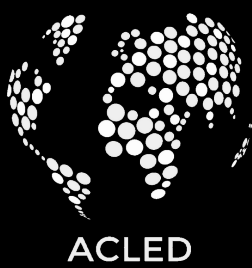

Chat with our bot to uncover more about the crisis in Sudan. You can quickly find out the current number of displaced people, the toll on children forced to leave school, and the spread of disease across the country. If you're accessing this from Sudan, our bot can guide you to nearby services and essential resources.

Our bot's knowledge is continually updated using a variety of trusted sources, primarily field reports from organizations and humanitarian agencies on the ground. To learn more about our data sources, please visit the section below.

Ask questions and get to know what is happening

Start conversation

Data sources

OCHA